Opening Up New History of Love for Future

There are many legendary touching anecdotes in the noble lifetime of President Kim Il Sung who spared nothing for children.

After liberation, the President suggested the pencil question for children as the first item for debate on the agenda of the new country to widely open the road of learning for sons and daughters of the working people. Even in the arduous years of the grim Fatherland Liberation War, he did everything for children's voices of reading and singing to be resounded and all war orphans to be grown up in good health with no sense of parentless sorrow.

In the early 1970's a foreign journalist appraised that there was no country but the DPRK in the world where all children called the head of state their "father" and that the DPRK was the kingdom of children, which implied its state policy.

The President enforced the universal 11-year compulsory education system for the first time in the world and built the palaces, schools and camps for children at several places of the country. He was truly their benevolent father who placed the future of the country above all others.

Hence, not only the Korean people but the world's progressives are praising in an excited tone that the President's lifetime was the one for the future of the country.

President Kim Il Sung gives field guidance to Tongju Middle School of Pyoktong County on October 10 Juche 46(1957).

President Kim Il Sung gives field guidance to the Komdok Mine on April 5 Juche 50(1961).

Among the People

President Kim Il Sung regarded “The People Are My God” as his motto, applied it to his ideology and leadership and turned it into reality. His noble lifetime is implied in one word “among the people”.

He always went to see the people and shared joy and sorrow with them saying that he was most delighted when he found himself among the people.

As he talked to a child, he went into his feeling and, to old people, he was their candid friend. As he met workers, he took hold of their oily hands freely and when he went to the countryside he chatted with farmers tenderly while sitting at the edge of a field.

As a result of his devoted hard work, the lines and policies he put forward correctly mirrored the need and interests of the people and won their full support.

The President went among the people throughout his lifetime with his noble view on the people that only the popular masses are almighty in the world and they are the great mentor of revolution.

His immortal exploits will shine forever as he always believed in the people as in heaven, relied on their strength to create the history of victory and prosperity and served for them.

Chairman Kim Jong Il is sitting on a man car going down to a pit of the Komdok Mine on July 1 Juche 64(1975).

Life of Devotion for People

Chairman Kim Jong Il was the benevolent father of the people.

We serve the people!

This was the noble motto running through his whole revolutionary career and the fundamental basis of kindred ties between him and the people.

The people were boundlessly attracted to him as they keenly realized that he was their leader in their hearts without being told of that.

As he led the country for decades he devoted his all to the happiness of the people day and night, saying that although President Kim Il Sung had been so anxious about the people's livelihood, he still failed to make them well off and that he was sleepless to think about it as it always weighed upon his mind. The Chairman was pleased most when the people were pleased and regarded any toil as pleasure if it were for the good of the people as he found the greatest worth of life in their happiness.

As he administered such noble politics of love for the people, they trusted and followed the Chairman only.

The Chairman is immortal as the benevolent father of the people on this land which is ringing with their laughter of happiness and cheers of hurrah for the Workers' Party under the care of the respected Comrade Kim Jong Un who carries on the Chairman's history of love for the people as he makes selfless, devoted efforts for them.

Loving Care Shown for Overseas Compatriots

Chairman Kim Jong Il placed deep trust on and showed immense love for the General Association of Korean Residents in Japan (Chongryon), which demonstrates the honour of being an example of overseas compatriots' organization in the world.

In May Juche 84(1995) he said that since President Kim Il Sung had led Chongryon along the road of victory until the last days of his life, we should now guide it, and sent Chongryon the historic letter entitled On Developing the Movement of Koreans in Japan onto a New, Higher Stage, which served as an encouraging banner for Chongryon to dynamically advance along the road of Juche, the road of patriotism, which was indicated by the President.

At a meeting with home-visiting Chongryon officials, the Chairman said that he deeply respected and loved Chongryon and spared nothing for it and suggested achieving the revolutionary cause of Juche together with the homeland caring for Chongryon and the latter for the former.

As he firmly protected Chongryon and compatriots in Japan, he continued to send them educational aid fund and stipends even when the country was having the hardest time and sent condolences and consolatory money to those who suffered natural disasters.

Chongryon officials and other compatriots in Japan have keenly realized it as truth that victory, glory and eternal happiness are in store for them on the road of holding in high esteem and following the peerlessly great men, and are leading a fulfilling life on the road of patriotism under the leadership of the respected Comrade Kim Jong Un.

Chairman Kim Jong Il meets officials of the Central Standing Committee of General Association of Korean Residents in Japan (Chongryon) on April 28 Juche 81(1992).

Magnolia, National Flower of DPRK

A deciduous broadleaf tree belonging to the Magnoliaceae family, Magnolia sieboldii is the native species of the DPRK. The flower has been loved by Koreans since olden times for its beauty and great vitality and economic value.

Pure and lofty spiritual world, outstanding talents and proud spirit of the Korean people are seen from the colour, fine shape of clear, clean and trim flower, its strong stalk and thick and seemingly refreshing and dignified leaves.

Its distinctive feature of being unchanged in the shape, size and colour of the flower even if it is planted in any parts of Korea coincides with the temperament of the Koreans, a homogeneous nation who have lived on the same territory carrying the same bloodline and created time-honoured history spanning 5 000 years and brilliant culture and are strong in national identity.

The Korean people very much loves magnolia, the beautiful national flower which gives them great national pride and dignity.
